ANOTHER FLAG RAISING

STARS AND STRIPES OVER ST. LOUIS COLLEGE.

Inspiring Exercises Held This Morning on the School Grounds—Literary Program and Music.

St. Louis college had flag raising exercises this morning that were all of grand and inspiring, and now old Glory floats majestically from the staff over the main building.

The exercises were held at 9 o'clock. Present were a large number of patrons of the college, many interested spectators and over 400 pupils. The band played and fireworks were set off; bombs thundered and spectacular pyrotechnics kept the heavens aglow; words of oratory were enjoyed by all, and the singing of patriotic airs was participated in by pupils and brothers alike in grand choruses. Following was the literary and musical program:

March—"The American Favorite"..... Carey
Raising of the Flag..... Prendeville
Chorus—"Star Spangled Banner"..... Prendeville
Chorus—"Old Glory"..... A. E. Murphy
Salute of the Stars and Stripes..... Prendeville
March—"American Air"..... Francis

Mr. Murphy's address was masterly dissertation on the flag and its meaning to the youth of Hawaii. It meant education, opportunities, advancement and a chance for fame to all of them. He dwelt long upon the limited sphere of the past, particularly of such boys as were in St. Louis College, and showed them in detail the enlargement of the scope in future. They had the opportunity now of attaining anything within the power of the American people to give, and their chances for the best were as good as those of boys of New York or California. He then spoke of the coming appointments to West Point and Annapolis and hoped some of the boys of St. Louis college would get there.

The flag was raised by a committee of nine boys, headed by William Welsh, who was dressed as Uncle Sam. As the breeze opened out the flag the boys with one voice opened out in terrific cheers. Dozens of bombs were set off and hats and coats were thrown in the air. The staid brothers of the college were as jubilant as the boys themselves, skipping about and cheering like 14-year olds.

After the ceremonies were over the pupils presented to Mr. Murphy a copy of the program handsomely mounted.

THE ART EXHIBIT.

The art exhibit of the Kiloahana Art League will continue open to the public every day from 9 o'clock in the morning to 5 in the afternoon, until June 22. It is also open Saturday and Wednesday evenings. The League extends a very cordial invitation to the public to visit the exhibit, and is especially desirous that pupils of the schools be encouraged to visit the pictures. There is no admission fee charged, the League being desirous that the educational benefits of the exhibit shall be as widely availed of as possible.

GOLD STORAGE STEAMERS

ONE TO FLY BETWEEN HERE AND THE COAST.

Contract Made For it Between the Honolulu Market Company, Miller & Lux, and the John S. Kimball Co.

A cold storage, refrigerator steamer, to make a round trip between San Francisco and Honolulu every three weeks, is promised for the near future. The steamer is one of the fleet of the John S. Kimball Steamship Company, and is modern in every respect.

This new enterprise is a part of the plans of the Honolulu Market Co., Ltd., which has a ten-year lease of the entire Waverly block, corner of Bethel and Hotel streets, and which expects to begin business in October.

L. A. Rostin, who, with Edgar Halstead, the president of the company, left here on March 29 to make the arrangements for the new enterprise, returned by the Gaelic last Wednesday, with every detail completed for supplies of meats and provisions, furnishings for the new market, and the contract for the refrigerator steamer. The contract for supplies and for the steamer has been made with the John S. Kimball Co., and the provision firm of Miller & Lux, the history of whose rise and dealings is as romantic as any story from that great field of romance, California. The firm owns in fee simple a million acres of land, and has under lease, a great deal more than as much more. It can start a herd of cattle from Arizona and drive them to San Francisco, pasturing them every day and corralling them every night on its own land. It is to the Pacific Coast what Armour & Co. is to the Mississippi Valley.

Mr. Rostin and Mr. Halstead visited New York, Chicago, St. Paul, New Orleans and other big cities of the United States studying meat markets and meat supplies. Everything that was new and improved and adapted to conditions here, they have incorporated in their plans. The complete outfit for the market, including refrigerators, delivery wagons, blocks, cleavers, hangers, scales and everything that is needed or used in a meat market, will be shipped from San Francisco about August first by one of the Williams, Dimond Company's vessels. The grocery firm of Henry May & Company will relinquish the Waverly block about September first, and the work of getting ready for the market will be completed it is expected about October first.

The Market company will have its cold storage plant in connection with the Honolulu Brewery, and for its supply will have a set of thoroughly modern refrigerators at the market. One of these will be a refrigerator ten by twenty feet, the outside of French plate glass, to be used specially for exhibition and show purposes.

Mr. Rostin, with Miller & Lux gives the Honolulu Market company the control of that firm's shipments to the islands. The extensive business of Miller & Lux will enable them to fully supply the year round any particular kind or cut of meat the island market may demand. The contract for the refrigerator steamer includes the option of a second steamer if it is needed. The whole hold capacity of these steamers is fitted for cold storage, separated into three compartments each of which can be kept at any required degree of coldness.

Mr. Rostin says that his company proposes to deal in all kinds of meat and market supplies, and has made arrangements that will enable it to meet all emergencies. It is the intention to ship as return freight by the refrigerator steamer, island fruits, especially bananas and pineapples, the refrigerator enabling them to be shipped and landed in San Francisco in the best condition.

The officers of the company which was incorporated some time ago are Edgar Halstead, president and treasurer; A. Hocking, vice-president and L. R. Rostin secretary.

The constant use and increasing sales of the Peerless Preserving Paint is its best endorsement.

THE TERRITORIAL COURT

ADMISSION DAY DRUNKS ARE ALL RELEASED.

Judge Wilcox and High Sheriff Brown Have a Short Session this Morning—Water Front Vagrants.

The first session of the police court with Judge Wilcox as a Territorial magistrate, was a short and quiet one. There was little work for the Judge or the High Sheriff to do. Eight drunks who had been gathered in during the celebration of Admission Day, were up for trial. The hearts of the Judge and Sheriff were softened so that the Judge suggested letting them go free with admonitions to sin no more, and Sheriff Brown entered no objection. "If I let one go, I shall let them all go," said his honor, when the first case came up. "And if I fine one I shall fine them all." A moment later number one was allowed to depart with his aching head, and all the others were promptly released as their cases came up. The Judge telling them not to do it again. It was like the annual discharge of Christmas and New Year drunks in some large American cities, and may possibly serve as precedent that a man has a right to get drunk on Admission Day in Honolulu.

The charges read "Territory of Hawaii" against the various defendants, instead of "Republic of Hawaii," as in the past. Otherwise the court proceedings were the same. Seven vagrants picked up along the water front, were given three months each. They were in the habit of sleeping in lumber piles. The case of Kalua, charged with using explosives to catch fish, which is the first case on the Territorial calendar, was set for hearing on June 22. Kalua is still in the hospital, where the hand he injured in his alleged fishing enterprise is being treated.

MESSAGE WITHOUT WINGS

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY BEGINS TOMORROW.

An Exhibition Will be Given Tomorrow Afternoon at the Executive Building—Messages to Kaimuki.

Wireless telegraph messages will be flashed back and forth tomorrow. Marconi's great invention will be put to the practical test on the island. At 2:30 tomorrow afternoon the public will have an opportunity to see exactly how messages are transmitted without a wire—that is, they will have an opportunity to see that it is done, whether anybody, even Marconi himself, knows just how it is done.

At that hour experimental messages will be exchanged from instruments placed on one of the platforms at the Executive building used in yesterday's Admission Day ceremonies, with instruments on Telegraph Hill, Kaimuki.

This will be a public exhibition, and the public is invited to the present and witness the experiment. It was hoped that stations would be completed and instruments in place, so as to send messages between different islands yesterday, as a part of the Admission Day exercises, but it was found impossible to get everything ready.

Following the exhibition tomorrow afternoon, the privilege of sending the first message from one island to another will be auctioned off by Col. Will E. Fisher. Whatever is received for the privilege enabling them to be paid by Colonel Fisher for the privilege of auctioning it off, will be devoted to charity.

The whole world has been interested in wireless telegraphy since the possibility of it was first announced. Though it has been tried in several places, notably in the America Cup yacht race last fall, it has been the privilege of very few people in the world to see it in actual operation. Isolated as the people of Hawaii are thought to be, and as they have fallen into the habit of thinking themselves isolated, they are among the first throughout the world to see it. And if it shall prove the success there is every reason to believe it will be, the end of Hawaii's isolation is in sight.

Guaranteed by its importance, there ought to be a large attendance at the exhibition tomorrow.

THE WEATHER.

THE DEPARTMENTS TODAY

HOW THEY GOT OFF UNDER NEW LAWS.

With Few Exceptions all are Running Smoothly—By Next Tuesday all Will be Straightened Out.

Government offices are today doing Territory of Hawaii business. At least some of them are, while others are rather handicapped on account of not yet being adjusted to the new conditions. This is true of the interior office, which has become the bureau of public works. Superintendent McCandless is away and nothing can be done until he gets back. Not a clerk in the office has authority to do anything with new business until reappointed and commissioned.

The clerks in this office were paid off this morning up to June 13. They are at work today closing up old business, but not on salary. Just what the new superintendent will do is a subject very interesting to them. As both the treasury and the attorney general's departments will take portions of the work from this office it is probable that not nearly so many clerks will be kept. There is no Commissioner of Agriculture yet. Mr. Hauges has been continuing the work of the office today, but has been unable to do any new business.

Attorney General Dole and Deputy Attorney General Dole are at the usual hour, and have entered fully upon their new duties. There was not a hitch of any sort in this office.

In the auditor's office everything started and is running smoothly. "For the present," says Mr. Austin, "there will be no changes in our office. Mr. Meyers and I are the only commissioned men in the office. The others of the staff are entirely satisfactory and will be retained. I do not know what the legislature will do, but the probabilities are that eventually the force will be reduced. You see, in future, with the postage and customs department out of our hands, we will have about 500 less warrants to handle in a month. This will probably permit some reduction of the force."

In the land office they are on routine business, and the laying of plans for work under the new system. There are no changes to speak of in this office will not be affected in the least.

In the education department there will be little or no delay. New blanks were received at the office this morning, and will be used. Superintendent Atkinson said: "I hope to have everything in good running shape by next Tuesday. Until that time I will not be able to announce my future plans."

The executive part of the Board of Health is running on as before. It is expected that the old members of the Board will be recommended. Dr. Wood has resigned from the presidency, however, and a new man for this office will have to be chosen.

In the courts Judges Stanley and Perry resumed work this morning. Judge Smith swore in all of the old clerks, and their business is running on as before.

There will be no changes in the work of the police department, except such as are directly prescribed in the Hawaiian bill, until United States Marshal Ray arrives here. The only interest the marshal will have in the illicit selling of liquor, however, will be to see that the internal revenue tax is paid. The residue of the matter will be with the high sheriff. All smuggling, of every possible description will be handled by postoffice and customs rules. In such cases will be returnable before the United States District court only. As, owing to distance, appeal will be impossible in most cases, the judicial fairness of this court must always be above reproach.

AN AMERICAN CITIZEN.

After the glorious consummation yesterday of Hawaiian modern history, when every Honolulu resident becomes, if not in actuality, in spirit, a subject of Uncle Sam, what play could be more appropriate to go down in local history than the first to have been given under the "United States form of government" than Nat Goodwin's great comedy success, "An American Citizen," which the Neill Company will present Saturday evening, June 23.

Monday morning the great rush will occur at Wall, Nichols Company, when the tickets for the single performance will be placed on sale.

SHANGHAIED AT MANILA

SOLDIER BEFORE THE MAST ON THE ERSKINE M. PHELPS.

Crimps of Manila Steal a Fourteenth Infantry Man—He Swims Ashore and Surrenders at Camp McKinley.

Just after the ship Erskine M. Phelps entered the harbor yesterday morning a man jumped overboard from her and started swimming for the shore at the cattle corral as fast as he could go. He wore only his underclothes, and as he was a good swimmer and made quick progress, soon set foot on shore. At the corral he was given some clothing, and he started from there at once to surrender himself at Camp McKinley as a deserter from the Fourteenth Infantry, now in the Philippines. He had been shanghaied by the crimps at Manila.

The young soldier has been an unwilling prisoner on the ship ever since he left Manila, having been put aboard in some way or other by shipping masters who were getting a crew for the ship.

Even his soldier's uniform did not save him, says the unwilling sailor, from the shipping men, and once on shore he was put back to put a man ashore under such circumstances. The soldier made every effort to escape, but could not do so until yesterday. He admits that he got drunk in Manila, and claims that he was captured by the crimps while he was intoxicated, and sent to the ship against his will.

The soldier will have to be treated as a deserter, and there will be a court-martial in his case. The army authorities in the Philippines have doubtless set him down as a deserter long since, and have set machinery in motion to capture him. Desertion in actual war time is a very serious offense, but the victim of the Manila man-stealers may escape on account of his having surrendered himself to the first military authorities he could find.

Early this morning three more men left the Phelps by jumping in the water and swimming to shore. They jumped over the bow, with bundles tied on their backs, and swam to the Pacific Mail wharf. The Phelps is a long way from the wharf, and it was quite a hard swim. The men report that Manila, settling into shipping master troubles, as Honolulu has done, and that measures are needed to keep the crimps from running the water front there.

DIED.

In Honolulu, June 14, Mrs. David Kane, widow of David Kane, died at the age of 22 years. Death occurred soon after giving birth to a son. The funeral will be held this afternoon from the residence, Kapalama, at 3:30 o'clock. The interment will be at Nuanani cemetery.

EXECUTIVE CONFERENCES.

The old system of executive meetings, or conferences between the executive head and heads of the Departments, will not be discontinued. "We will go on as before," explained Governor Dole this morning. "While there is no law for such conferences there is none against it and our opinion is that it will be in line with the public interests to continue them."

FIRST AND LAST PAPERS.

The Ship Dirigo and Bark Ivanhoe Get Them.

The American ship Dirigo, Captain Goodwin, and not the Erskine M. Phelps, which arrived yesterday, was the first vessel to make an entry in the American custom house of Honolulu. Though the Dirigo did not arrive till this morning, she got her papers in first. The Phelps not making an entry till today. On the records the Dirigo therefore appears as the first arrival after the change. The Dirigo is an even larger ship than the Erskine M. Phelps. She is 3,000 tons gross register and has a foot beam. She comes from Hongkong in ballast, to carry sugar and she will take about half a million dollars' worth. The two immense wind-jammers make a big showing in the stream, with their sky-scraping masts towering high above everything else. They were both built in Bath, Maine, by Arthur Sewall.

The last clearance papers of the Hawaiian custom house are held by the British bark Ivanhoe, Captain George M. Grant. Captain Grant was unable to get away. He will leave today for the Sound in ballast.

MONEY ORDERS ISSUED.

Three United States money orders were handled at the local postoffice yesterday. One was received and put in the others issued. Prior to the departure of the next steamer there will undoubtedly be a great rush for these orders, as they are the cheapest way to send money, costing only thirty cents per hundred dollars. They will be generally used in the payment of small bills on the Mainland.

The Savings bank has not yet closed, although no business is being done. The treasury agent to close it up was expected by the last steamer but did not arrive. He will probably be here next Wednesday morning.

DOORS OPEN FOR OPIUM

NEW LAWS MAKE IMPORTATION EASY.

No Custom House Watch on American Vessels From the Coast—A Big Contract for the Police.

Opium smuggling will no longer be the worry of the custom house men now that the new laws have gone into effect, but the opportunities the new system affords for importations of opium promise to give the police plenty of work. There is no law to stop opium from coming into the country from San Francisco, or any other American port, if the American duty on it is paid. The consignees who receive it here will be liable to arrest for having the drug in possession, if the police can trace it, but as the customs inspectors will not watch American vessels, there will be no check at all upon secret importations. The only goods the custom house now cares anything about are those from foreign countries, and from the States in bond. A sailing vessel or steamer from San Francisco, or a lumber schooner from the Sound might bring any amount of the drug and the customs officers are not supposed to find it out. The American vessel enters at the custom house and files her manifest as usual, and then she is allowed to go ahead with the discharging of her cargo, unwatched by the customs department. The price of opium ought to drop materially under these conditions, as the police cannot do guard and inspection duty along the water front. There will be no watch on the Australia next time and if any of her enterprising crew want to come ashore with their clothes filled with tins of dope, they have only to fear arrest by the police for having the stuff in possession.

The costs of the Hawaiian Islands afford splendid opportunities for smuggling, and the customs men have a bigger contract than they had before, in fact, as the number of dutiable articles is not great. The smuggling
